4. Edinburgh City Centre Transformation – Presentation

Daisy Narayanan, Project Director of Edinburgh City Centre Transformation provided a PowerPoint presentation on the Edinburgh City Centre Transformation Project.

She highlighted that the project aimed to address how Edinburgh would achieve a step change in approach to issues including transport, amenity, social value (e.g. air quality, mental and physical health), place, urban development and heritage. The challenges and opportunities that Edinburgh faced to achieve this transformation were outlined. A cross-party working group which included representatives from all relevant departments such as housing, transport, planning and economic development met every six weeks to provide oversight of the project. The importance of this collaborative approach was emphasised. A consultation ran from 17 September 2018 until 12 November 2018. All responses would now be subject to analysis and review, in order to prepare a summary of the findings which was due to be reported to the Council's Transport and Environment Committee in early 2019.

Following a wide-ranging discussion and a number of questions, the following key points emerged:

- Connectivity and creating better transport links was key if the aim was to reduce the number of people driving their cars into Edinburgh.
- Approximately 8% of the responses to the consultation came from outside Edinburgh Council. There was a need to raise the profile of the project outside Edinburgh, however, it was noted the consultation was shared with all neighbouring local authorities.
- There were key performance indicators for each objective which allowed progress to be tracked.
- It was important to link this piece of work to the National Transport Strategy currently being reviewed.
- The importance of ensuring the business community were on board with this project was emphasised.
- The benefits of more people walking needed to be highlighted along with the subsequent benefits this could bring to businesses.
- Consideration had to be given to the digital age and the uncertainty surrounding the long term viability of the retail sector.

- 2) To agree that a copy of the slides be made accessible to members.
